

The Wanamaker Store.

Values, Great and Various

THE list of economical opportunities of this morning is something diverse and varied. In it four items are heavily accentuated, Linens, Children's Shoes, Men's Trouser, Cut Glass.

The miscellaneou character of these items is only in sound. They have a common basis and a common classification. They are all bargains unusual. It is but an evidence of the "sweep" of a store that it on one day brings together on a single plane matters so apparently diverse in character.

A July Sale of Linens

Six nations contribute their best to this linen show. You can compare the manufacturers of Ireland, Scotland, Germany, Austria and France. Each has its own characteristics and its own points of superiority.

Our linemans spend half his year among the whirring looms of these countries, and has been doing so for half his life. His knowledge of linens is the exhaustive knowledge of the specialist. It is at your service to-day.

These goods are just what they are called—linen. There is no cotton masquerading as flax, nor cotton threads concealed in the weaving. The prices will speak plainly to housekeepers and hotel-keepers. We need not dilate upon them. The items given are only suggestions. The stock can be described only by the word prodigious.
